Dear Colonel,

With reference to your letter of March 26, extensive enquiries have been made with a view to tracing Lok Chi Man and Chu Yao Kwong, but without success. They are unknown to the Chinese newspapers, the more important of which usually are able to furnish information about representatives of the Kuomintang who are sent abroad on missions, and there is nothing in the records of the Netherlands Consulate on the subject of Chu Yao Kwong, who is said to have been deported from Java. The lack of progress in our inquiries would seem to indicate that Lok and Chu must have used different names when they were in China, and I would, therefore, recommend that further efforts be made to obtain the Chinese characters for their names.

Yours sincerely,

Lieut. Col. G.W.R. Hallam, C.B. ,
North China Command.

The Netherlands Consular Authorities here have no record of the man Chu Yao Kwong (?) being deported from Java, and in order to trace in records of Passport Vises granted at the Netherlands Consulate here, that is providing he obtained such vise, it will be necessary to have the correct Chinese characters for his name. The Consul General for Netherlands kindly offers to communicate with Java asking for data regarding the man Chu Yao Kwong should this be deemed necessary.

With only romanized names as a guide our records have been gone through but without result. The sphere of activities of the two men would appear to have been Nanyang. I suggest that the Chinese Section see Mr. Van der Berg who may possibly have something on Chen Yao-kun.

Reference to the attached, diligent inquiries have so far failed to discover the identity of the persons Hok Chi Man ( ? ) and Chu Yau-kwong ( ? ). Leading Chinese News-papers usually have record of representatives of the Kuomingtang who are sent on missions abroad but nothing is known of these two men, or on record in any of the news-papers.

It is suggested that probably these persons are not known, by the names given, in Shanghai. It would facilitate inquiries considerably were their names in Chinese characters available.

My dear Aiers,

I shall be grateful for any information that you may be able to let me have regarding two representatives of the Kuomintang named Mok Chi-man and Chu Yau-kwong the Chinese characters of whose names are unfortunately not available.

Mok Chi-man arrived at Calcutta via Rangoon in September 1928 and stated that he was on his way to South Africa as representative of the Kuomintang. While in Calcutta he stayed with a well-known Chinese firm of cabinet makers named K. T. King Bros, No.45 Dharamtala Street, Calcutta.

Chu Yau-kwong wrote to K.T.King Bros. saying that he would come to Calcutta to raise funds for the Nationalist movement but he subsequently returned to China from Singapore. He was in Singapore, Siam and Java for several months representing General Li Lieh-chun and raising funds for the Nationalist movement. It is reported that he was deported from Java by the Dutch Authorities.

Yours sincerely,

C. M. Holland
